How much does it Cost to Lease a Used Tractor

With a true lease, you make payments for a set period of time (2-5 years) and at the end you may walk away from the tractor, or you'll have the option to purchase the tractor for 10% of the original finance amount - (so if you financed $50,000, you would then own the tractor for a final lump sum payment of $5,000) while with an equipment finance contract you would own the equipment at the end for a final payment of $1.

John Deere Tractor Leasing Costs Price and other

Leasing a tractor will result in smaller payments than a loan - but you'll have a balloon payment at the end if you want to keep your equipment. The reason many farmers choose a lease isn't because of lower payments

Pros Cons of Farm Equipment Leases Successful Farming

Even if the dealer allows a trade-in of the value of the owned tractor on the lease of a new one (which pokes further holes in the IRS view of a true lease), it is not a qualified like-kind exchange, because you don t own the new tractor.

Leasing vs buying machinery Successful Farming

Assuming other factors were the same, over the 10 years, it only cost $1,500 more to lease the tractor than it did to purchase the tractor. I thought it was uncanny that there was only a $1,500 difference between the lease and the purchase.

Viewing a thread tractor lease New Ag Talk

Lease is a term commonly thrown around for basically a financing deal. What you are really looking to do is "rent" a tractor. If the dealer has extra tractors sitting on their lot, they might rent you one. Last time I rented one, it was a JD 8100 for $40/hour, minimum of 100 hours. I wouldn't expect to rent a new tractor for what you are wanting.

Caution for Farm Equipment Leases CropWatch University

Most financial institutions that furnish equipment with lease agreements put taxes at the top of their list of why you should lease equipment; however, as a tax preparer, I list it as the top con. Tax law certainly allows that rental or leases of farm assets is an ordinary and necessary business expense.
