Portrait Wikipedia

When the artist creates a portrait of him- or herself, it is called a self-portrait. Identifiable examples become numerous in the late Middle Ages. But if the definition is extended, the first was by the Egyptian Pharaoh Akhenaten's sculptor Bak, who carved a representation of himself and his wife Taheri c. 1365 BC. However, it seems likely that self-portraits go back to the cave paintings, the

The Mourning Portrait Daguerreotype

The daguerreotype death portrait had another feature that made it different from, if not better than, the painted memorial. It captured the physical reality of death, while painted memorial portraits invariably showed a living subject, with stock symbols (certain flowers, for instance, were conventional signals) to indicate that the subject was dead.
