

CHILDREN AND GRIEF

RELATED BOOK :

Grief and Children American Academy of Child

Children should be allowed to express feelings about their loss and grief in their own way. Once children accept the death, they are likely to display their feelings of sadness on and off over a long period of time, especially around special times such as birthdays and holidays, but also at unexpected moments.

How Children Grieve Persistent myths may stand in the Grief, he adds, is not very well structured, and all children, like all adults, grieve in their own ways. Grief May Be Invisible Many adults, Thomas says, may believe that if children are not visibly grieving, they're not grieving. "Grief is the internal response and mourning is the external response to loss.
