In addition, Gamow recounts a wealth of revealing personal anecdotes which give a warm human dimension to many giants of 20th-century physics. He ends the book with the Blegdamsvej Faust, a delightful play written in 1932 by Niels Bohr's students and colleagues to satirize the epochal developments that were revolutionizing physics. This celebrated play is available only in this volume.

Thirty Years that Shook Physics The Story of Quantum

George Gamow (1904-1968) was a ground-breaking nuclear physicist who was actively involved during the remarkable 30-year period of the formulation of the early versions of quantum physics. An especially gifted writer of physics for the layman, he was an important inspiration for my decision to become a physicist.
