Generally, I don't love stories that delve deep into family dynamics, because I find it gets dry very quickly. Not so with Into the Forest. Every detail was riveting and beautiful, and the book painted a clear picture of each scene. It's sort of a dystopian Little House on the Prairie.

I definitely won't include any spoilers, but it's about two sisters who live in the forest after some sort of terrible worldwide event.

Book Review Into the Forest by Jean Hegland

Into the Forest is the tale of these two sisters and how they endure the threat of starvation, the loss of their mother to cancer and their father to an accidental death, the threat of desperate intruders, and most of all, the internal struggle to fend off despair, and the tenuous bond between two sisters.
