The Homework Machine The Homework Machine 1 by Dan Gutman

The Homework Machine is a book that I enjoyed very much. In The Homework Machine, a boy named Brendon invented a machine that does people's homework. The machine got the nickname Belch. Inventing the machine wasn't exactly cheating for Brendon, because he was already a genius and got excellent grades.

The Homework Machine by Dan Gutman Review BookPage

That's the situation presented to Sam, Kelsey, Judy and Brenton in Dan Gutman's entertaining new book for young readers, The Homework Machine. The four children, all fifth graders in Miss Rasmussen's class at Grand Canyon School, are as different as any four 11-year-olds could be, but they have one thing in common all are somewhat isolated from their peers.

The Homework Machine book by Dan Gutman Thriftbooks

The homework machine is a great book it is about a group of kids who become friends. They become friends by using a machine made to do homework codenamed Belch. The book is very very funny and knows just when to add humor to it. The only bad thing about this book is that you wish the book was longer.

The Homework Machine Read To Them

The Homework Machine, our first Gutman offering, is a perfect example. Four kids in 5th grade stuck together as the D Squad. A ne'er-do-well (Sam), a goody goody (Judy), an apathetic girl (Kelsey), and a brainiac (Brenton). How will they get along? With the Homework Machine, of course.

There's long-haired, rebellious, cool guy Sam Dawkins; fun-loving, unacademic, pink-haired Kelsey Donnelly, African American grind Judy Douglas, and friendless genius Brenton Damagatchi.
