If the cake gets totally stuck, cut the bottom of the can off with your can opener and push the cake gently up out of the can (sort of like a push-up pop ice cream). Gently remove the can bottom from the cake with a thin knife. Once the cake is cool, carefully slice it in half horizontally to make your 2 layers.

Once the cake has cooled completely, invert the can and let the cake slide out onto a plate or clean counter. If the cake doesn't slide out of the can on its own, you may need to loosen it with a knife. Slide the knife in between the cake and the interior side of the can, then run it around the edge to separate it from the side.
